SECTION A (Reading)

1. Read the passage given below carefully and answer the questions that follow : 8

- 1 Through several decades, Lata Mangeshkar sang for the righteous and chaste Indian woman on-screen, while her sister Asha Bhosle sang numbers that called for sensuality. Mangeshkar had such charisma that film-makers and composers realised very early on that having her in a project signalled credibility and impeccable standards. Much before a film was shot, the composer, lyricist and singers were signed on for the project. This meant that several films that did badly at the box-office had outstanding music helmed by Mangeshkar, that reached listeners through radio, a universal mode of entertainment in those early days after Independence. In fact, it was radio that took her voice to different parts of the country and made her synonymous with Hindi playback singing.
- 2 Mangeshkar never took her talent for granted. She would spend time on her rehearsals, practise her diction and ensure immaculate renditions. Once, when superstar Dilip Kumar told her to improve her diction, she asked a family friend, an Imam, to come and teach her to read and write Urdu. She sang in a range of Indian languages — from Bengali to Marathi — her mother tongue — to Punjabi. She was a unifying factor, who brought the nation together as a repository of its culture, entertainment and, of course, music.

3 As films moved to less formulaic tropes, Bollywood, too, underwent changes. Directors moved towards authenticity in representation, and, here Mangeshkar was a huge success, setting standards in playback singing. She sang the way her heroines spoke, moving from the thick, nasal 'gayaki' popularised by Noor Jehan or Shamshad Begum, that had till then been the standard. She could sing for an entire range of characters — from a poetry-loving village girl in a prison, to a witty and defiant courtesan in Akbar's Sheesh Mahal, to an emotional mother trying to fend her children by ploughing the field, or to a young woman who had just broken away from the shackles of a claustrophobic relationship. And who can forget Kavi Pradeep's seminal Aye Mere Watan Ke Logo, in the wake of the Sino-Indian War of 1962 that brought tears in the eyes of people. This song has been a fixture at every patriotic function for nearly five decades.

2. Read the given case-based passage on 'Malaria' carefully and answer the questions that follow :

6

- 1 One of the most exciting races ever run is now in progress between doctors fighting malaria, and mosquitoes. According to the most recent count, 225 million people a year suffer attacks of malaria and more than two million die. Public health workers around the world are doing all they can to destroy malaria before the mosquitoes that pass on the disease become resistant to the chemicals now used against them. It is a race against time and against difficulties, with millions of lives in danger and the chances of winning not in man's favour.
- 2 Malaria, it is true, has been practically wiped out in thirteen countries, including the United States, and is under attack in many others. But it is equally worrying that in some parts of the world certain types of malaria-carrying mosquitoes have already become immune to the sprays.
- 3 The World Health Organization is helping national governments to get rid of malaria before resistance among the mosquito population becomes so great that new chemicals will have to be found to replace those in use at present. Most of the countries in the world have started, or are planning campaigns against mosquitoes. If the race against resistance is won by man, it is possible that ten years from now this fatal disease will have disappeared completely from the world.
- 4 Malaria is the world's oldest recorded disease. It is referred to in old Chinese and Indian writings. It was one of the causes leading to the downfall of both the Greek and Roman empires. People recognized a long time ago that there must be some connection between malaria and swamps, and some believed that insects living near swamps might be the carriers of the disease. The Romans dried the swamps and reduced the mosquito population. This was the best method used for the next fifteen centuries.

5 Not until 1632 did Europeans find a successful treatment for the disease. The Spanish discoverers of the New World learned from the Indians of Peru that the bark of one of the trees growing there, often ended a patient's attack of malaria. The Dutch planted quinine trees in the East Indies and in time established almost complete control of the medicine made from it. When the East Indies supply was cut off during the two World Wars, two other drugs were developed which proved even more successful than quinine. Today, most of the world uses these newer drugs.

After studying the passage on Malaria, answer any three of the following questions : 3×2=6

- (a) What are the public health workers around the world busy doing ?
- (b) What is the cause of worry in regard to malaria eradication ?
- (c) What is the silver lining in the campaign against eradication of malaria ?
- (d) What had possibly caused the downfall of the Greek and Roman empires ?
